CET—
Certified in Emerging
Technology

CET affirms you have what it takes to apply in-demand emerging tech expertise to your current or future roles in IT audit, risk, security, cybersecurity, governance, privacy, business development and beyond. Offering more than just an understanding of theory and concepts, CET's four certificates stack up to a certification that validates ability to perform technical tasks and advise on, assess and implement emerging technologies.

Let's Get Certified!

Why certify? ISACA certifications are globally accepted and recognized, and they give you the credibility you need on your quest for career advancement. Certification proves to employers that you have what it takes to add value to their enterprise. In fact, recent independent studies have consistently rated ISACA's designations among the highest impactful certifications that an IT professional can earn. If you want to boost your earning potential as well as enhance your professional credibility and recognition, click on one of the pictures below to begin your path to certification.

CTRL+Click on an image above for the CISA, CRISC, CISM, CGEIT, or CDPSE certification and you can now choose to schedule and take your exam from the comfort and safety of your home, or anywhere, at a date and time that is convenient! If your testing center remains open, you are welcome to take your exam in person if you prefer. Either way, there is no additional cost to take your exam online.

Reading Nook

The FBI confirms the Darkside hacking group unleashed a ransomware that shut down Colonial Pipeline service on the East Coast. Colonial Pipeline, which provides gas and diesel for cars and trucks, jet fuel, heating oil for homes and fuel for the military, halted all pipeline operations after the hack.
